Fertility Treatments for his Biological Clock

The growing trend of men starting a family of their own

(Boca Raton, FL –November 1, 2006) He’s successful, established, ready to start a family and still single. Palm Beach Fertility Center is seeing more and more single men who have just given up on the idea of marriage but not on the idea of fatherhood. Like their female counter-part these eligible bachelors have taken matters into their own hands and are not waiting around for Ms. Right.

“In the past five years I’ve seen a dramatic increase in single male patients wanting to have children on their own” Says Dr. Mark Denker, Medical Director of Palm Beach Fertility Center.

Due to the growing demand of single men wishing to start a family, Palm Beach Fertility Center has created a new program, Fertility Treatment for his Biological Clock helping men start a family on their own. Dr. Denker has created a one-stop-shop that combines the latest in technology and diversity of resources, under one roof such as: Donated eggs, Gestational surrogacy, Legal services including surrogacy and donor egg contracts and Psychological counseling.

“In my late forties, I found myself successful in business but unlucky in love and divorced. Although we tried for a number of years, we didn’t have any children. When I looked into my most likely future, the somber reality that I would probably never have children of my own started to slowly come into focus. How old would I be if I met Ms. Right? Would she already have teenagers? Many of the women I have dated don’t have kids because they can’t or don’t want them. It was time to “think out of the box”. Says (patient)

“I chose a surrogate and an egg donor. Because of my own experience as an only child, I wanted to have twins so they would always have each other. With the guidance of Dr. Denker at Palm Beach Fertility Center I became the proud father of two wonderful baby boys!” adds (patient)

Dr. Denker warns it is very important to consult an attorney before exploring these options for both men and women.
